Web Series, a New Conspiracy of Cultural Assault.

In the last few years, web series through the Internet has emerged as a major popular means of entertainment. After the closure of cinema hall etc., during the crisis of Covid 19, the demand for these web series has increased tremendously. These web series based mostly on criminal subjects are becoming especially popular among youth and women. In view of their growing trade and in the name of realistic artistry, these web series often feature scenes of openly hateful violence, sexuality and nudity, and dialogues abound. And to prove the inevitability of all this, many types of petty arguments are also given. Along with this, scenes tarnishing Hindu Dharma and criminalizing Hindu values are shown in plenty in these web series. Bhartiya army and their families which has a strong place of honour and respect in the minds of our citizens, is also shamelessly and recklessly portrayed as derogatory.

A.B.P.K firmly believes that this is another well-planned conspiracy to hurt and damage our social systems and beliefs in the garb of artistic expression. Since, there is no proper system of regulation on these mediums; they misuse this unlimited freedom to take these mediums to the extent of anarchy. Though we support freedom of expression but only as far as human sensibilities, traditional values and national identity are not hampered.

Bharatamuni's Natyashastra, the oldest text of art in the world, which is also known as the Pancham Veda, states in its 114th Verse of the first chapter that the play song, in audio-visual form, as is preached by all sources, all expressions, all deeds and actions since the beginning of the time to shape, guide, educate and positively influence the society to be better. The stories and plays are aimed to give relief to the tired, pained and those afflicted with fatigue grief. It is said in the 299th verse of the 22nd chapter of the Natyashastra that father, son, mother-in-law, daughter-in-law all sit together and watch the drama, so it should not display any disrespectful, embarrassing or shameful act.

A.B.P.K truly appreciates the web series that provide clean entertainment and urges such producers and directors to produce series that also show the uniqueness of Bhartiya culture and society. A.B.P.K strongly condemns the chaotic freedom that is flourishing under the guise of freedom of expression and expects art, literature, culture and followers of Bhart and Bhartiya to boycott such free, vulgar works and acts. The A.B.P.K also demands from the government that there should be an immediate system to enact stringent laws to curb such kind of creations/productions, which hurt the delicate fabric of Bhartiya society and the nation as a whole.
